Brief Presentation of EFN (especially for new members)

- Established in 1991
- More than 35 European universities
- The Erasmus Forestry Network functions as a network of European universities dedicated to fostering collaborative initiatives, enhancing the mobility of students, teachers, and researchers. Its primary objective is to promote and strengthen cooperative efforts within higher education, specifically focusing on forestry, wood, and related disciplines.

Brief Presentation of EFN (especially for new members)

- The mission of the Erasmus Forestry Network is to raise awareness and share updates between universities. It involves regular informal meetings and presentations of institutions, as well as facilitating student, teacher, and research mobilities.
- The vision of the Erasmus Forestry Network is to facilitate the effective exchange of updates and challenges in mobility and project collaboration. It aims to streamline, enhance, and improve the quality of student, teacher, and research mobilities.

Project Results – New Approaches

- Organisation: Karelia University of Applied Sciences
- Title: Erasmus Forestry Network
- Members:

Mendel University in Brno (Czech Rep.)

ENO Schoolnet Association (Finland)

University of Lorraine (France)

Vytautas Magnus University (Lithuania)

Project Results – New Approaches

- The grant award decision for the Erasmus+ Cooperation Partnerships application round, which ended in March, has been made by the Finnish National Agency for Education.
- A total of 63 applications were submitted to the higher education sector, one of which was withdrawn during the application round.
- Six projects received funding, and the lowest score required to receive funding rose to a high level of 91 points.
- Next call for Cooperation Partnerships will most likely open in November.
